Explanation:

Regular type is used for polyanthas no longer in commerce or available privately as far as is known. Italic type is used for polyanthas barely in commerce; that is, it indicates that the roses are only available from one nursery, or from custom rooting or from private gardens. Bold type indicates roses that are distributed by at least two or more nurseries on a regular basis as of 2005.

*Coral Bells is listed as a rose at Sangerhausen ; however, there is no corresponding listing for this rose in the American Rose Annuals in either the 'New Roses of the World' or 'List of Patents' for the indicated year.

Edward VII lists an American breeder (Schulthers) but an English distributor. However, it was available in the United States in at least 1922, and in the United Kingdom in 1920.

 Whisper was granted a patent in 1973, but was denied eligibility for rose shows because it conflicted with another rose of the same name. It was not listed in the appropriate American Rose Annuals under 'New Roses of the World.'

*Vaughan's White Baby Rambler was listed in the 1922 American Rose Annual listing of all known roses by the organization. However, subsequent articles in the American Rose Annuals in both 1941 by Grave derided the rose as merely a new naming of a German rose (possibly Thalia) and again in 1982 by Dr. Charles Jeremias who seemed to identify the Vaughan Rambler as Katharina Zeimet. Since neither identified the source of their information, Vaughan is included on the basis of the 1922 identification.

Kentfield has tentatively been identified as the rose as 'Pink Gate' by Fred Boutin.
